

Frankenfont

Project:

Graphic design is all about communicating ideas visually. With that in mind, your task is to consider the existing letters in the alphabet as well as a host of preselected fonts in order to create a new 27th letter in the alphabet.

Instructions:

Your TA will provide your studio with printed letters in a variety of fonts. You should select several different letters and fonts (being considerate of others in your studio) and develop a new letter out of pieces of these already existing letters and fonts.

Use your olfa knife to carefully cut the pieces so that they all flow together smoothly. You should use multiple different fonts in your frankenfont letter creation.

Make 3 different letters. Once you have done this, select your favorite and create a new 'clean' version of it by tracing it on a sheet of paper from your TA and cutting it out in one piece. Then tag this letter with three different terms that describe it.

Pay attention to the conditions of contrast and hierarchy. Consider how the letter can also be looked at as a folded object, just in two dimensions.

Deliverable(s):

Your final 'clean' letter.
